WHAT MAKES A murder important? New York makes the Snyder murder case violently important news. Even Cyrus H. K. Curtis' gentle, refined newspaper yesterday printed fifteen columns of type and six pictures about that one crime, twice as much as it ever prints about anything "respectable."

man, and ten lines tell enough about it. Mrs. Snyder's husband is killed, sleeping. Wire is fastened around his neck to make sure he will never wake; his skull is broken with a sash weight. And it takes fifteen columns to tell that Mrs. Snyder says Mr. Gray did it, and she tried to stop him.

NORWAY THREATENS U. S. SACCO BOYCOTT

A boycott of American goods and a refusal to unload American merchant vessels if the death sentence against Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti is carried out by the organized transport workers of Norway. These joint threats were made to the United States consul at Oslo by leaders of the dock laborers.

In another effort to get Sacco and Vanzetti to sign statements to be presented to Governor Fuller, Atty. William O. Thompson, accompanied by leaders of the defense committee, went to the condemned men's cells at Dedham jail today.

The task of pleading both Sacco and Vanzetti in the words of the statement, and at the same time framing the desired sort of appeal to the Governor, is taxing the ingenuity of the committee. It was hoped by Atty. Thompson that the draft typed out today would be final and that, with the signature appended, the plea would be in the Governor's hands by night.

Five affidavits, described by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers as "sensational" in their nature, will accompany the statement of the two prisoners. Until Governor Fuller receives this statement, which the condemned Please Turn to Page 4, Column 2.

RUTH NEAR COLLAPSE IN COURT AS GRAY TAKES STAND IN LIFE BATTLE

Long Island City, N. Y., May 2 (A.P.).—Henry Judd Gray, co-defendant with Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder in their trial for the murder of her husband, took the stand this afternoon.

He was called immediately after Lorraine Snyder, nine-year-old daughter of Mrs. Snyder, had testified very briefly in her mother's defense.

Lorraine was merely asked if she had been sent by her mother to call "the neighbors" on the morning Snyder was killed, and she softly answered, "Yes."

She was then excused.

Mrs. Snyder finished her testimony at 2:10 P. M. After being on the stand for twelve and one-half hours, Counsel for Mrs. Snyder and the State nearly came to blows during the end of Ruth's cross-examination. The Snyder counsel objected to the way Mrs. Snyder was being questioned. A clash followed and only the stern admonition of the court prevented trouble.

Gray, seemingly composed on being called to the stand, waived his constitutional right to refuse to testify against himself and told calmly of his early life.

Samuel Miller, Gray's counsel, conducted the direct examination and brought out that his client was a constant church attendant. As Gray testified, Mrs. Snyder sat in her chair almost in a state of collapse. After her one long ordeal on the stand her eyes were red from suppressed weeping.

Gray told of becoming a coronet salesman and of his marriage and the birth of his daughter.

He sat in the high chair with Please Turn to Page 2, Column 1.

SELLS LIBERTY FOR LIFE, PRICE BEING ONLY $6

Dramatically interrupting the testimony of his accused to change his plea to guilty, Matthew F. Carmody, former Fort Banks soldier, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for robbing Mrs. Florence Mourad in the Battery railroad station at Winthrop on March 3.

The Winthrop woman was telling the story of the brutal beating she received at the hands of Carmody when the defendant decided suddenly to admit his guilt. Judge Fosdick dismissed the Superior Court jury that was hearing the evidence and promptly imposed the maximum penalty.

The examiner took only $4 from Mrs. Mourad, but in doing so committed what Judge Fosdick called one of the most brutal attacks that ever came to his attention. Carmody had steadily protested his innocence when the defendant decided suddenly to admit his guilt.

ONE-DAY-LATE CEREMONY IN RECTORY

Worcester, May 3. — Well-Clarence L. Rochester is married at last to Beatrice Inouit and only a day late after missing out on his own wedding yesterday.

His brother George announced the marriage today and said it took place in the rectory of St. Joseph's Church this morning.

Only ten relatives were present at the ceremony, in contrast with the throng gathered in the church yesterday.

It was said the couple's honeymoon trip will consist of an automobile tour through New York State and south to Washington.

It was in St. Joseph's Church yesterday that the organ pealed and the nuptial mass was sung all in vain for Rochester, a prominent contractor, was missing and his disappointed bride was prostrated.

George Rochester said his brother was ill on the set date, ill from overwork.

The marriage followed many conflicting stories, and then his return home—a return as mysterious as had been his disappearance. First he was reported at the home of friends in Providence.

But at that house, in Keene street, a woman declared the well-known contractor had not been there for two weeks.

Then, suddenly, the word flashed that Rochester was home. To reporters, who investigated, information was given that Rochester certainly had come back home, but was then suffering a bit of a breakdown, with his disappointed bride nursing him.

Friends of the couple cannot understand what explanation Rochester can offer. There was no objection to the match from anybody, as far as is known, for the two had been engaged for some time, and both families seemed pleased with the match.

Rochester had been married previously, and is the father of four children, his first wife having died about nine years ago.

Miss Inouit is a graduate of Worcester High School, class of 1924 and was employed as stenographer by a local jewelry firm.

BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON, TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1927

LOSES FLIVVER, 'OH, YES, I'LL BE YOUR NO. 6'

Robert G. Hall of Paradise road, Swampscott, who went West last July with a flivver, is back home again without the flivver but with a bride.

He sold one and won the other in the Kansas City that's in Missouri.

Both were surprises, but the bride principally, because she married him secretly and until he accompanied the girl to Swampscott none of his friends or relatives had heard the slightest mention of her.

Neither had Hall until he became the victim of a highwayman who stripped him and the car.

Then the Swampscott man, son of Mrs. Nellie G. Hall, prominent clubwoman of the North Shore, went looking for a job in Kansas City.

"Would you hire a Hall?" he asked of an office manager. The office manager would and did, and Hall met Leona Lorraine Peuster in the same office. They were married secretly on January 10.

Oh, yes—Hall sold the stripped flivver for $12.50, a b. roadside.

They were riding in an auto when Aldena felt a muscular arm around her waist. "We're going to be married right away," said Teddy, her boy friend of 55 years.

"Any time you say so dear," said Aldena, who is 27.

And that, in short, is the romantic story of "Teddy" Murphy, actor, five times married, and Aldena Marie Fanlon, actress, hairdresser, graduate nurse and eye specialist, and divorcee of a year. Both are playing a Boston theatre and the wedding bells are scheduled to ring on Sunday with a justice of the peace doing the honors.

Murphy's first marriage was in 1892 and his last wife, the fifth died in 1925. Divorce did not figure in any of the marriages. Death of his wives made him a widower five times.

"Never argue with your wife," said Murphy in relating the secret of getting along with the better half. "If a table cloth is white and they say it is green, agree with them. I never had a serious quarrel with any of my wives."

Five Times a Widower ~ And His Sixth Bride

"Teddy" Murphy, 55, actor, and Miss Aldena Marie Fanlon, 27, actress, have filed marriage intentions in Boston. Miss Fanlon, a divorcee, is mother of eight children. Murphy, five times married, is father of two children. Murphy reveals the secret of happy married life. He says it's to never argue with your wife.

Doctors said the end is near. Booth no longer smiles at his predicament, and he takes no interest in his surroundings.

GIRL WINS FIRST WILL POINT

First honors in the battle over the will of Charles S. Harris, deceased theatre manager, today went to Emily Fuller, his sole beneficiary, when relatives contesting the will were refused a petition for jury trial by Judge Charles N. Harris in Middlesex Probate Court.

Attorney John J. Dunright, representing George Harris, brother and other relatives of the late manager of Keith's Boston Theatre, appealed Judge Harris' decision. Date for hearing on the petition to break the will was not set. It will be heard by Judge Harris.

Emily Fuller, pretty blonde actress, was formerly a ticket seller in the theatre Harris managed. When he made his will he left his entire estate to her. At that time she was 13. Relatives charge undue influence.

JUDGE GOES ON STAND IN BIG OIL SUIT

For the first time in the history of the Boston Federal Court, a United States Judge was put on the stand today as a witness to testify concerning judicial acts performed by him. This was Judge George P. Anderson, a regular judge in the same court in which he was called to testify. He was called as a witness by Sherman L. Whipple, attorney for the creditors of the New England Oil Corporation, plaintiffs in an action against the Tanker Syndicate, Inc., made up of part of Boston banks and bankers.

Judge Anderson presided at hearings on the New England Oil Corporation receivership, as also did Federal Judge Morton, who may be called as a witness later in the present case. The plaintiffs claim information was withheld from fraud perpetrated on those two judges who assented to the receivership plan.

This alleged fraud or concealment involved several million dollars, according to the claim, and questions were put to Judge Anderson today as to his memory regarding the former proceedings when this vast sum was in the balance.

Through a ruling of Federal Judge Julian Mack of Boston, who is acting in the present proceedings, Judge Anderson was forced to take the stand. Judge Mack deciding he could not legally receive a sworn certificate on the matter.

"I have no knowledge of what was concealed from Judge Anderson," said Judge Mack, in refusing to allow his judicial certificate and that of Judge Morton to be introduced in evidence.

Their statement of facts in the case will be well nigh conclusive, but their recollection of those facts is a matter that ought to invite direct inquiry and cross-examination.

Their memory is human and fallible, as that of any other men.

BEYON MAWR PETITION.

A petition from 326 girl students at Bryn Mawr College, Pennsylvania, asking the appointment of an impartial commission to study the case, was also received by the Governor, and another from 35 Clark University students asking clemency.

A review of the case was urged on Governor Fuller in a petition received today from members of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin Law School, including Dean H. S. Richardson and P. F. LaFollette, a brother of the late Senator LaFollette.

Arthur A. Blanchard, an instructor in the chemical department at M. F. T., wrote the Governor:

"I was distressed to read that the authorities and students at Mount Holyoke College had sent petitions to you to interfere with the justice of the courts in regard to the Sacco-Vanzetti case."

COLLEGE GIRLS 'INFLUENCED'

"I have just talked with my daughter, home for over Sunday, and find that, as I imagined might be the case, the students of the college were powerfully swayed by a talk by one of the professors and induced to sign the petition before their normal respect for the courts, and consideration for the Governor, had had a chance to counteract the hysteria."

assure you of the moral support of the great mass of citizens who usually hold their peace."

Prof. Frederick M. Pedersen of the College of the City of New York, wrote Governor Fuller "to let the courts' decision stand and thus do a little something to discourage communism in this nation."

Another message received today amid countless others was a cablegram from Cuba, which read: "Labor meeting at Cienfuegos, first of May, protests injustice of Sacco-Vanzetti death penalty and asks you for their immediate freedom."

A 14-year-old Berkeley, Cal., boy, George Bedinger, in a letter received by Governor Fuller, asked that Sacco and Vanzetti be pardoned. Rev. Frederick C. Wilson of the Congregational Church, Richmond, Mass., urged the appointment of an impartial investigation committee, while Roger L. Soule of Park street, Boston, wrote in favor of administering the law in this case as in any other, without fear or favor.

Clemency was asked in a petition signed by twenty members of the faculty and student body of the Commonwealth College of Men, Arkansas.

The Y. M. C. A. congress, at a meeting at the Huntington avenue branch adopted a resolution favoring the appointment of a committee to review the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

ess policy, Mr. Coolidge advised the American people to regard with suspicion any stories purporting to state the American government's attitude toward China that originate outside of Washington.

At the same time, Secretary of State Kellogg denied reports that U. S. Minister MacMurray had resigned from his Peking post. Although Mr. Coolidge names no names, it was fairly obvious his thrust was directed at the British, who have been endeavoring for weeks to persuade the administration to go along with Britain in presenting a stiff ultimatum to the Chinese Nationalists.

The British press has been filled with acrid criticism of America's Chinese policy. Reports have originated abroad and been called to this country that the American minister at Peking is about to resign because of dissatisfaction with Washington's policy, and there have been other inspired reports that American consular authorities in China are "disgusted" and "ashamed" of the moderate policy insisted upon in Washington.

All reports, so far as Mr. Coolidge is aware, are untrue. He does not consider America has "deserted" her allies because she has no allies; Minister MacMurray is not going to resign so far as Mr. Coolidge knows; and he has yet to hear anything of relatively about the dissatisfaction of consular officers.

Two of British Crew Wounded by Chinese Fire
Shanghai, May 3 (A.P.)—Two British auxiliary vessel Kiawo was under fire again today, says a wireless message from Chinkiang, this time from riflemen near Chinkiang. Two of the crew were slightly wounded. The fire was returned. The Kiawo and the British gunboat Tait were fired on Sunday by a Chinese fort near Chinkiang, on the Yangtze River, about 40 miles east of Nanking. There were no casualties and no serious damage in this attack, and the warships silenced the fort with little difficulty.

"Bond Bread is greatly responsible for the well-built bodies of my children, their vitality, sparkling eyes, and rosy cheeks," writes Mrs. Eugenie M. Bodell of North Plymouth. "Each healthy child bears testimony to mother's care and wise selection of Bond Bread."

Mrs. Bodell's two very healthy youngsters, Mary and John, are shown here.

Just 8 years ago, 6405 Boston housewives brought samples of their home-baked bread to Tremont Temple to show us the kind of bread they wanted for themselves and their children. Being frankly copied from the best of these 6405 loaves, Bond Bread quickly became Boston's most popular bread.

Why is it that after 8 years of unparalleled popularity, Bond Bread now enjoys an even greater demand than ever before in its history? Because day after day for 8 long years, Bond Bread has been uniformly home-like. Its splendid flavor comes from its pure ingredients—ingredients every bit as pure and choice as you yourself would use. Its healthfulness comes largely from its thorough baking. This thorough baking is what makes it so firm and close-textured, as well as so flavorful.

Every day more and more housewives realize it pays to discriminate in bread. They have tried them all and have convinced themselves that a home-like, healthful bread, like Bond, is the greatest bargain a woman can buy.

answer. And you notified no one although you knew Gray was going to take your husband's life? A—I didn't know it.

Q—You remember testifying that you knew he would? A—Yes.

Q—You were notified later by letter that he was "coming down to kill the governor"? A—Yes.

Q—He told you to put the pillow under the pillow and you obeyed him? A—Yes.

Ruth Gets $96,000 Insurance If She's Acquitted

New York, May 3 (A.P.)—Mrs. Ruth Snyder, if acquitted, will receive the $96,000 insurance which she took out for her husband, Albert Snyder, some time before he was murdered. If the jury finds her responsible for her husband's death and returns a verdict of murder in the first or second degree or homicide the insurance money will go to her daughter, Lorraine.

Met Gray With Kiss

Q—Then you went to bed until your husband was asleep? A—Yes.

Q—Your husband was dead in one ear? A—Yes.

Q—Which ear? A—I don't know.

Through questions and answers, Frosell then led the witness to repeat her story of going to Gray, kissing him, feeling his rancor, and realizing he meant to do the murder then.

After that, she said, she took away downstairs.

Q—By the hand? A—I don't remember.

Q—You took away a revolver he had and put it on a piano? A—Yes.

Q—You didn't hide it as you did your jewelry? You were more interested in your jewelry than in your husband? A—No.

Q—Your object was to get him out of the house? A—May I explain?

Q—No. Answer the question.

Q—Couldn't you have kept him out by locking the door? A—Yes.

Q—Did Gray know the pistol was there? A—No.

Q—How did it get upstairs later? A—I told him where it was.

She then told of hearing a "terrific thud" while in the bathroom and of running out to see Gray beating Snyder.

Q—Then? A—He pushed me and I fainted.

Q—When you came to, you pulled the covers off your husband? A—Just enough to see that he was covered up. I didn't see him.

Q—Not the wire on his neck? Not the waste in his nose? A—No.

Q—You never saw any part of the body? A—No.

Q—Did you touch him? A—No.

Q—Didn't you try to help him? A—No.

Q—You didn't even look to see if he was warm or cold? A—No.

Q—Dead or alive? A—No.

Q—And you stayed in the next room then with Gray for two hours? A—Yes.

Q—You went into your husband's room during that time to get a shirt for Gray? A—No.

Q—Haven't you testified that you were the only one to enter that room after the murder? A—Yes.

Q—Did you tell him you tried to prevent the murder? A—I don't remember.

Q—You told the jury that, didn't you? A—Yes.

Q—Don't you think that was an important enough fact to tell him? A—Yes.

Q—Did you think his investigation was a joke? A—No.

Q—Can you remember a single thing you told him that he did not tell him? A—I don't remember what I told him.

At the examination passed the first hour of the day Mrs. Snyder's voice was faltering and she often appealed directly to the court against the stern questioning.

Frosell took up in detail McLaughlin's testimony, asking the witness her recollection of each statement. She insisted her memory was vague as to anything she had told the commissioner.

Gray was sitting upright in his chair, staring at the jury. His hands for once in his lap and no longer fidgeting his chin.

Mrs. Snyder said she had no recollection of telling McLaughlin any of the statements read, but acknowledged that they were largely true.

Questions Veracity

She remembered telling him of the return from the card party, but denied any recollection of telling Gray in her mother's room: "If you go through with it I will."

Q—Did you tell McLaughlin that Gray went to your husband's room and you watched him kill your husband? A—No, and it isn't true.

The Great Teacher of Life is Life Itself

"June Madness"

Suppose you were the young bride of an elderly husband. Suppose you had everything money could buy except romance, and then one sunlit June afternoon out of the water to your very feet there came a bronzed young viking! What would you do . . . ? A vividly enthralling story from such an episode in real life awaits the readers of June Smart Set.

"Should I Share My Sweetheart?"

If ever there was a vital up-to-the-minute question, here it is, asked by a man who feels that "there's no good reason why a fellow should share his girl's caresses." But the girl contends that she's not yet tied to him—and wants her fling. Which is right? Read what this worried lover says in June Smart Set and write us your convictions. There are cash prizes for the best answers.

"Appearances Were Against Me"

Can a girl have an "innocent" friendship with a married man? Here's a question that is perplexing many a girl today. Ruth Brian tells of her experiences in June Smart Set. What happened to her might happen to you or any girl who became interested in a married man.

We learn by the experiences of others. Their lives are sure guide-posts to our own living—to achievement, success, happiness. That is why autobiographies are so fascinating—because they contain the secrets of life, of power, fame and fortune.

All great men have become great by studying the lives of others, the successful ones who went before them. President Coolidge reads autobiography almost exclusively. He has learned from the experience of the past what to avoid and what to do. Would you win happiness, love—all the treasures life holds in store? Others have done it, are doing it today. But do you know how? Read their stories. Find out what they have learned so that you may avoid their mistakes, and profit by their discoveries.

Read the autobiographies of today by people of today. You will find them in Smart Set, that amazing magazine devoted to stories from life. Here are real, sincere accounts of the errors and triumphs, the trials and joys of people like yourself who seek only their happiness. And if you like drama, action, realism, you will be thrilled by the vivid, self-told stories which you will find only in Smart Set.

luxuries money can buy. But how could she, a shop girl, ever get them? What happened makes this intimate diary the most thrilling and powerful revelation of a woman's heart you have ever enjoyed. It begins in June Smart Set. And 15 other vivid features.

JUNE ISSUE JUST OUT

"The Beauty Market"

Did you ever hope that you could win the Beauty Prize at Atlantic City? Have you ever thought of what winning that prize might lead you to? Here's a girl who says, "What my beauty won for me can never make up for what it lost for me." Read her startling experience in June Smart Set.

"I Tried to Escape From Life"

"Only a little while ago I wanted to die. I tried to die," says this girl who thought there never had been a Garden of Eden, that Romance was a Fairy Tale and True Love just bunk. When it was almost too late, she discovered her mistake. Her frank self-revelation will startle readers of June Smart Set.

"Do Men Prefer 'Wicked' Women?"

When a sensational case in which a woman is involved comes up for trial why is it that men write her letters? What do those letters mean? What are they about? Here's a woman who has been through a harrowing experience in which she was accused of crime. Her story tells about the letters she received, how she acted because of one of them and what her life has been since.

Win a CASH PRIZE

In every issue of Smart Set there are fascinating contests offering attractive cash prizes to readers. In the June issue alone, there are 36 such prizes. These prizes are all easy to win. Enter one of the contests. Full details in June Smart Set. Out Now.

RUTH FACES GREATEST ORDEAL OF TRIAL

"No is an answer, madame," snapped the prosecutor.

Mrs. Snyder questioned the veracity of all the commissioner's testimony as it related to the events of the night before the murder.

Q—Will, do all this refresh your recollection as to whether you told the commissioner you tried to save your husband? A—I don't remember.

Q—Then Commissioner McLaughlin lied?

A—Mrs. Snyder's counsel objected to the question.

This question was sustained. The contents of the affidavit were then dumped on the counsel table and the witness identified various garments and articles.

Mrs. Snyder's confusion was increased and she said that the initials of it were hers and had been put there to make it authentic.

She said that during the day she signed it she had no recollection.

Q—Then Commissioner McLaughlin lied?

A—Mrs. Snyder's counsel objected to the question.

Asked for Curling Iron

Q—You asked to see Gray? A—No.

Q—But you were told he was coming down and you then asked for a curling iron for your hair? A—That has been asked.

Q—Yes, or no, madame? A—Yes.

Mrs. Snyder's confusion was increased and she said that the initials of it were hers and had been put there to make it authentic.

She said that during the day she signed it she had no recollection.

Q—Then Commissioner McLaughlin lied?

A—Mrs. Snyder's counsel objected to the question.

being reminded of previous testimony.

When you put Gray in your mother's room he had the machine? A—No, I saw it in his room.

Q—Performed, madame? Did you perform?

A—Yes.

The confusion version from the time of meeting Gray through the murder she denied almost entirely.

Excitement suddenly rose to a high point when she was asked to answer to the question whether she had seen Gray out of the house after the murder.

"You Are Lying Now?"

"Why," Froessel shouted, "you were lying about upstairs at that time."

"Yes, of course, I was," she replied with her hands fluttering to her mouth.

Then you were lying just now? Froessel thundered, and Hazelton jumped to his feet.

I object to the tactics of the State attorney," he cried, and the lawyer walked toward each other as though for physical conflict.

They were shouting unintelligibly until the judge called them sternly to order and the examination continued, the last question remaining unanswered.

Denies Plot to Kill

She admitted discussing her marital troubles with Gray, but denied saying in the confession: "Things had become unbearable and I saw I must find some way out." She denied that Gray wrote her that it was better for them to "get rid of the governor" before he got rid of her.

Q—Well, then all you want to do is change the "we" wherever it appears to "he"? A—In reference to killing my husband, yes.

Several times during reading of the confession Mrs. Snyder made denial which she later withdrew after

Many of the women in the aisles said they were so weak they could hardly stand but they stayed doggedly in place, so as not to miss a word of testimony.

When court opened for the afternoon session Mrs. Snyder resumed the stand looking pale and with eyes listlessly surveying the crowd.

Stands By Her Story

Froessel continued reading the confession and checking it with the witness who answered in a flat voice.

Ruth's Bravado Melts Under State's Blows

proud of their apt pupil, Hazelton chews gum cheerfully.

The witness, Snyder, is confused. "I don't know what I want to say," she sighs, "I don't know what I want to say." Her eyes now betray the weakness that had been covered. Her voice is rasping again.

Identifies Linen

When the cheap flannel and negliges that decorated Ruth's hours of leisure are displayed, Ruth blanches and bows his head. A bathrobe of copiousness, blue pink pajamas, striped pajamas—Ruth's voice, her flimsy and womanly as she admits association with them.

And when Mrs. Snyder came to watch the trial, Herbert C. Smyth, noted New York lawyer, Mrs. Olive Scott Cabot, whose business is law and politics and women's problems; Pauline O. Field, who has been an assistant to Josh Benton of New York.

Ten Hours on Stand

Ten hours of cross-examination have passed.

Ruth holds up.

Froessel's questions are fast and furious. The witness keeps up his pace.

"So, then, you lied?" he leans out, "did you?"

"I lied?" Ruth says frequently.

"Very angry."

Pauline Field, the woman lawyer, visiting the trial, has this to say of the stand, Ruth Snyder is the coldest, blindest woman I have ever seen."

GAS VICTIM, ACCUSED AS SLAYER, IS INSANE

Providence, May 2 (A.P.)—Charged with manslaughter in connection with the shooting on January 4 of Mrs. Ruby Rohrich, in his home at East Providence, Peter Finley was found "not guilty by reason of insanity" today.

Finley, wounded, stunned and shell-shocked during his 26 months with the A. E. F. in France, was on parole from the State Hospital for Mental Diseases, where Mrs. Rohrich was a cook.

Police Band Can Whistle

"Mamma, where's the police band?" "Directing traffic, my darling."

"Mamma, where's the drum major?" "Taking numbers, my darling."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Friday Now Voted Prize Night for Happiest Events

IN A PROGRAM THAT each season grows more overwhelmingly debauchish, it well behooves the town's smart Senior and Junior Supper Dance coteries to secure for themselves, well in advance, certain favorite nights on next Winter's calendar. Friday is the prize of the week, evidently. It's Friday that far-sighted mammas (with debutante daughters) desire above rubies as the all important date for a coming-out ball. It's the one certain day that brings, without fail, a horde of young dancing men from our cross-the-river University to be the "stags" in necessary numbers for a successful debut.

FOR VERY MUCH THE SAME reason the Junior Supper Dance potentes snatch up Fridays. And for the Senior Set Fridays mean that interesting visitors from afar may augment the local set for gay and joyous Friday-to-Monday celebrations. So already are eight Fridays of next Winter dedicated to the Supper Dances. Ronald T. Lyman for the Seniors has taken December 16, January 13, February 3, March 2 and March 23. For the Juniors Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell secures February 10, February 24 and March 16, three Fridays that in no whit interfere with strenuous "mid-years" and thus insure an outpouring of the smart young people included in the Junior Supper lists. As usual both sets are held at the Hotel Copley-Plaza.

THERE IS A PLEASANT POSSIBILITY that Charles Henry Fiske will open his town house for a short period, after his return from abroad with the new Mrs. Fiske, at least until after Class Day and they migrate for the Summer months. Just now Mr. and Mrs. Fiske, who have been in England since their marriage on May 7, are crossing the Channel to Paris and will probably take ship for this country about June 1st, sailing from Cherbourg. The Fiske-Russell marriage is of great interest to friends and relatives of Mr. Fiske hereabouts.

THE NEW MRS. FISKE WAS Miss Winifred Russell, of

IN THE PUBLIC GARDENS

Little John Eliot Thayer, 3d, a future director of many large enterprises, is just now largely concerned with his Wild Western outfit and his trusty iron steed and his rides about the pleasant confines of the Public Gardens. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., of Boston and Lancaster.

Taurina, Sicily, and North Devon, England. She was a daughter of the late Richard Bury Russell of the 2nd Queens and a colonel of the Devon Artillery. The marriage was celebrated at Mortimer, England, under a special license from the Archbishop of Canterbury. Mr. Fiske has hosts of friends and chummates in town eager to extend the most cordial of welcomes. He has a town house in Marlboro Street and a country place in Weston.

A SOJOURN AT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS in the heart of the Virginia mountains is on the honeymoon program of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow. They will be at the Greenbriar, where the after-Easter colony is the smartest and most important in years, resembling the good old days when wealth and fashion flocked to "The White" as regularly as the seasons rolled round. Society in Boston will probably, for some time to come, designate Mrs. Bigelow by her erstwhile name of Mrs. "Ollie" Ames, as this young leader of the inner set has so long been popularly known.

THAT THE "TOM" COTTMAN did the expected thing and entertained royally after the Maryland Hunt Cup race is the indication from news coming up from Baltimore. The great turf classic brings together the smartest of companies, in which Boston was liberally represented. Mrs. Cottman's sisters, Mrs. Bulkeley Wells and Mrs. Edward Cunningham, both went down from here to be with her at "Westbury," the Cottman country place, which was filled with guests for the sole occasion. The Cottmans move and have their social being with Baltimore's best.

MRS. J. MOTT HALLOWELL is one of the many hostesses entertaining at dinner before the Cotton Ball. The whole of society remaining in town is keenly alert for this unusual feat, all of which of course insures a spectacular presentation and an attendance taking even the Statler's magnificent ballroom proportions. As the first large society affair in Boston's newest hostelry, and having for its beneficiary the Free Hospital for Women, the "Cotton" Ball should cut a swath.

LITTLE JOHN ELIOT THAYER, 3rd, is a young man who in future years will carry on his shoulders the honors, interests and the mantle of place and importance in the community, but who now is more concerned with his trusty iron steed and his sombrero and his rides about the Gardens. The youthful John is a scion of the house of Thayer, being the small son of the John E. Thayers, Jr., of No. 35 Marlboro Street and Lancaster. His checked jacket and his "chaps" are the envy of his small companions who daily disport of mornings, in the pleasant Gardens.

STORY OF LOVE, 80 CENTS AND WIFE'S SUIT

Back of every wall some drama plays, disguised as reality. This is a story of the William Kelleys and eighty cents, of poverty's grind and of sacrifice—a story of something perhaps, that failed to come out. William Kelley was arrested, he caused every court story starts with an arrest. He was arraigned in Chelsea Court, where Judge Cutler frowned when he heard the charge of failing to support a wife, and child. It is necessary to say Mrs. Kelley is crippled; that her story on the stand was that he had not provided for her in the three weeks since he left the Washburn street, Revere, home and she went to her sister in Beachmont, and that he sometimes got drunk.

NURSES INVALID WIFE. William Kelley was his own lawyer and with gentle questions he drew from her memory the facts that had been misunderstood; that she knew his work at the Fish Pier was poor that perhaps it was only once a month when he took too much liquor; that he never went out at night after arriving home at 5 p. m.; that he always cooked her supper and his own; that she nursed her in addition to doing his own work and that never before had she moved against him. Her sister, Mrs. Mary McMillan, testified that Kelley had "beaten up" his wife. But again Kelley cross-examined, this time not quite so gently, perhaps. Mrs. McMillan admitted she had never seen her brother-in-law strike his wife.

DIVIDES HIS ALL. "This matter looks as though it might be one that can straighten itself out," said Judge Cutler when all was over. "It seems to me this man has tried hard to do his part. We cannot punish a man for being poor, nor can we punish him if he is perhaps a bit foolish. I find him not guilty." As two policemen assisted his wife from the room, Kelley relieved one and guided her to a bench. He had had eighty cents when arrested, and now his hand went into his pocket and came out with the coins. Evenly he divided them and placed forty cents in her hand. Looking up, she smiled at him and smiled back. Then he glanced at his sister-in-law and the smile faded as their glances clashed. He turned and hurried away.

Buddy Myer Weeps, Rigney Smiles at Trade

Washington, D. C., May 3.—Followers of the Senators are shocked into utter silence by the announcement from Manager Harris that he had traded the 23-year-old Buddy Myer for the 30-year-old Topper Rigney and they went to the ball park prepared to vent their wrath.

It was not until the afternoon of the 23rd that the Boston Red Sox announced to the public that the Washington manager had made a trade.

According to Manager Harris, the trade was made because the Sox needed a catcher and the Senators needed a pitcher.

He noted that the Sox had been in a losing position for some time and that the Senators had been in a winning position.

Myer, who had been with the Sox since 1928, was a popular player and his departure was a blow to the fans.

Rigney, who had been with the Senators since 1928, was a popular player and his arrival was a boost to the fans.

IT WON'T BE LONG before Frank Hogan gets a chance to prove his worth behind the bat for the Braves. The former Somerville High star has made a decided hit with the Tribal board of strategy and Manager Bancroft announces that Frank will do his share of receiving during the long home stand of the natives.

Fans Rush to Watch Maloney Work

Long Branch, N. J., May 3.—The opening of the public exhibition training for Jimmie Maloney and his camp mates at the local Ocean Park Casino attracted a large number of boxing fans from all parts of the shore to watch the Boston boy get himself into shape to take on Jack Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium on May 19.

The sparring partners were due to be here, but their coming has been put off a little while until Manager Dan Carroll is sure that no danger will be caused on account of the fight Maloney had pulled a few days ago.

Although it has given him no trouble, Dan is taking no chances. Ray Townsend, New York fighter, was the only sparring partner to arrive for the day's workout. Townsend wrestled in the ring for about five minutes and later played handball on the court with Almie and Jere Gardiner, the trainer.

The activities were the same as usual, although a noticeable change in pep has followed the visit of Tex Rickard Sunday.

When Maloney finished his work he walked 200 yards.

This leads Carroll to remark that his fighter will be able to get down to about 200 pounds in time for the battle without much effort.

LOUGHRAN AND STRIBLING GO TONIGHT

New York, May 3 (A.P.)—Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia held an advantage of a pound and a half over Young Stribling of Georgia when they weighed in this afternoon for their ten-round fight tonight at Ebbets Field.

Loughran, who had been with the Sox since 1928, was a popular player and his departure was a blow to the fans. Rigney, who had been with the Senators since 1928, was a popular player and his arrival was a boost to the fans.

Muldoon Likes Jack Sharkey's Chances

New York, May 3.—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight contender, today rested up after his trip from the Hub. He will not get down to serious training until tomorrow when he will report at Stillman's Gym for his first workout.

Sharkey, who had been with the Sox since 1928, was a popular player and his departure was a blow to the fans. Rigney, who had been with the Senators since 1928, was a popular player and his arrival was a boost to the fans.

EVENING AMERICAN REPORTS

T PROVING SENSATION WITH AS

Believed to Be Done as a Player, Cobb Is Up With Leaders at Bat and Field

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 3.—Just the way of keeping the record straight and possibly righting a great wrong, or something, the writer wishes to call attention to the fact that T. Raymond Cobb, the man with a promising future, is hitting an even .400 today.

Further than that, he is running smack on the cases and is playing well enough to get by in the outfield, as it possibly is time to cease chasing Willy at the slightest provocation.

The writer has held the notion that Cobb would finish the season as an Atlantic regular and it may be that I will be right, but by way of variety, that that is to great importance compared with the fact that Cobb's record for the first three weeks of the season is one of the outstanding achievements of 1935 baseball.

UP WITH LEADERS. No man in the history of the game has given it so much of himself as Cobb has done in his twenty-three years in the major leagues. No man has suffered the physical and mental toll that Cobb has given in the pure sensationalism of his play. Yet, today, well past forty, he is hitting with the leaders and, indeed, rapidly overtaking them.

The last official averages showed Cobb hitting .395 but he has been going places and doing things in the meantime. For a half hour yesterday, his average had attained the noble altitude of .418 and who, another hit he would have ranged in behind Pate and the leader for the league leadership. But he didn't get it and his average unweaved a bit, falling to .416.

However, no club has been so slow to drop Cobb as the one that the season and Philadelphia has gone wild over him. It is not unusual, they say, for clubs to be excited to acquire a hundred seasons before a game at Shibe Park and the estimate is that his signature has been written in the thousand-dollar opening book.

Baseball writers of the town are saying that Cobb is doing a lot of running on the town. That he is not getting the same from the fans as he used to. But they say that Cobb is doing a lot of running on the town. That he is not getting the same from the fans as he used to. But they say that Cobb is doing a lot of running on the town.

Carrigan Up to Old Tricks Sox Get Best of It

David Harum of Game Ruth Gets Flying Start No Reason for Trade

CARRIGAN STILL DAVID HARUM OF BASEBALL

BILL CARRIGAN is the same old David Harum of baseball. That swap of Emory Rigney for Buddy Myer is one for the book. Anyway you look at it, Boston grabbed the long end of the deal. Just how Carrigan did it, and why Washington is willing to let a young star like Buddy loose, are baseball mysteries that will take a lot of explaining.

The new Red Sox is a kid, while Rigney has been pounding the large league trail for ten years. Myer was a regular in the infield of a pennant contender. Rigney could not even grab himself a steady job on the Fenway team, which is certainly not overloaded with A-1 big leaguers.

Rigney hasn't been fast at all for several years, while Myer is a sprinter and a smart base runner. Both can hit well, with Myer, a kid coming into his own, a bit superior to the fading veteran.

The former Senator is a better and more flashy fielder. He's one of those nifty athletes. Nick Flattery, who move with the careless grace of a professional dancer. Buddy covers more ground than Emory and has a good, accurate arm.

There's no apparent reason for such a trade, and Carrigan either put something over on Bucky Harris or there's something behind the scenes that may remain hidden forever and a few years.

The Red Sox need young, hustling ball players of class, rather than veterans who have lost youth's fire and who are inclined to coast along on losing teams. Myer is still a bit of a kid and will be giving everything to make a star out of himself. The position of the team in the race will not worry him. His job is to boost Myer.

When the Senators were here a week or so back it looked to your correspondent as though the speed and niftiness of Myer had rounded out a really remarkable infield for the Washington outfit. Buddy seemed to be the spark plug that kept the machine going at top speed.

He'll help the Sox right where they need assistance, and is real and excellent evidence that Carrigan intends to get himself a ball club.

SHARKEY DROVE HIMSELF OVER TO NEW YORK AND EXPECTS TO DRIVE JIM MALONEY BACK TO BOSTON.

KEEP MOVING TOWARDS THE TOP ALWAYS

Sometimes you become discouraged because you think you are just a success.

You seem to accomplish so much, but when you look back so much more has failed. It is not always the right time because you have not done enough things.

Progress you have done as well as anyone could, situated as you are.

It is a poor achievement, but it is a poor achievement.

Lost confidence because you have not done enough things.

As you are, you are ways to improve and keep a...

You advance.

Advancement is progressive, so don't give up; keep trying.

Think and believe in your own ability and you will.

Acceptance of failure causes stagnation.

As long as you keep your name and your eye in the top you are a...

Don't be anything less than a top and you will advance.

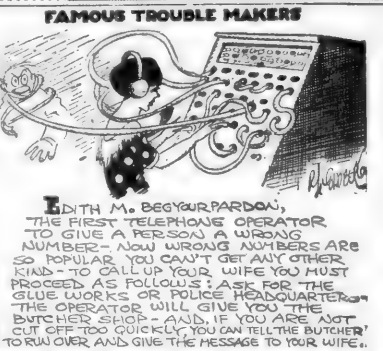

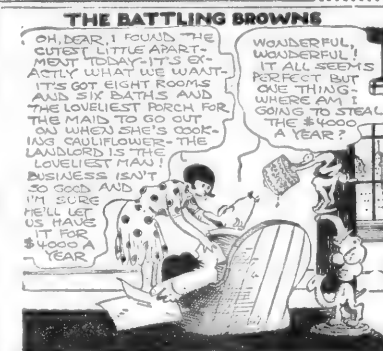

It is not your own failure, but it is your own failure.

David Copperfield

By Charles Dickens

DAVID was sent away to school because he had bitten his stepfather when the latter beat him. The schoolmaster, a brute, who had been told of the episode, at once began to discipline David. He compelled the boy to wear a placard reading, "Take care of him. He bites."

DAVID'S life was brightened, however, by the friendship of the most likable boy in the school, James Steerforth, a handsome, dashing youth. After all the lads had gone to bed studious David ~~and~~ to tell his idol, Steerforth, stories from the many books he had read.

SOON after, David's mother died. He was taken from school, separated from his friend Steerforth and sent to London by his stepfather to work and to board with the Micawbers. The Micawbers were an engaging but irresponsible family, always in money difficulties.

WHEN Mr. Micawber was sent to the debtors' prison and his wife, who would "never desert Micawber," accompanied him with their children, David was left homeless. He decided to run away and throw himself on the mercy of his Aunt Betsey. (Continued Tomorrow)

ABIE THE AGENT

THE MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN--BY HELEN ROWLAND

It is getting so that you have to keep the shades pulled down these days, to avoid seeing your neighbors commit suicide.

Every morning some woman wakes up and discovers that none of her hats is becoming, or that the man she loves has gone back to his wife, and—ping!—another unsettled soul goes out into the great beyond.

Or a young man wakes up and faces the bitter fact that he will have to go to work for a living, or that all women's kisses are alike, or that the mother has gotten into his favorite golf stockings, and—Bang!—it's all over but the coroner's inquest!

We are all trying to get more THRILLS out of life than there are IN IT!

You can't get more juice out of an orange, or more speed out of a car, or more money out of a purse than there is in it.

But we all seem to fancy that we are magicians, who can pull a rabbit out of a hat, a bolt of satin and a bridal bouquet out of a silk hat.

We all seem to be going through life with our feet on the accelerator and no pressure on the brakes or the steering wheel. We are sleep-pining on the gas every minute and trying to take all the hills on high!

Life is full of thrills! But they are not continuous. Not every day is Christmas Day. There are long, monotonous level spaces between the high spots, thank Heaven!

Take love, for instance. It is life's carburetor. But it is not one long, eternal thrill. There must be moments between kisses—and not even in every kiss is there a kick.

Romance, sentiment and passion are the flowers of love; but they are as fragile and ephemeral as morning glories. The THROTS of love are an aching affection and tender, teasing, satisfying and heart-pining on the gas every minute and trying to take all the hills on high!

And there is marriage. It is one long honeymoon. Yet, even after it has settled down to a daily routine of coffee, kites, there is a wonderful thrill in building a home, success, and a permanent and beautiful existence together.

Work, play, money, books, art, travel—all have their thrills, their dull moments—and their PRICE! Sometimes it's a long time between thrills, but the "kick" in all the greatest when it comes.

FOR Sour Stomach
PHILLIPS' Milk
of Magnesia

Whereas instead of soda take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda
For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid, gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle
Insist upon "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in twenty-five cent and fifty-cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Government's Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

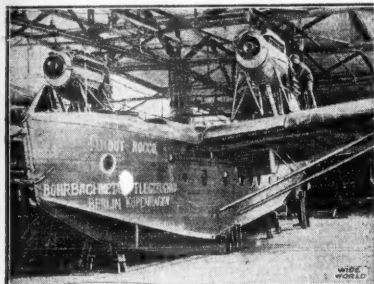

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weild the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Amphibious, and It Flies

The Newest, Strangest Air, Earth and Water Plane

GERMANY LEADS THE WORLD IN AIR. THIS SHOWS HER LATEST.

Germany leads in the air. Her great commercial flying fleet, with her highest financiers, business men and statesmen honored by membership in its Board of Directors, called the Lufthansa, is the greatest air passenger-carrying concern on earth.

Each month it plans and establishes new air routes. It sends airships from Germany over the Alps to Italy, sends them east to Moscow. The Lufthansa covers Europe with a network of flying lines. There is nothing experimental about it. It is the line that business men and other travelers use to save time as a matter of course. And soon, most important of miracles, flying will cost less than travel by rail.

Germany has prepared airships to carry passengers from Berlin to New York and awaits an invitation to land on this side.

The President should send that invitation, if only to let Americans learn something about airship building and using.

This picture shows the latest German airplane achievement. It is built to go on LAND, on WATER and in the AIR; it will carry ten passengers and a crew of five.

We may not be doing much flying or airship building in America. We drag dismally behind in the race. But at least Germany and other European countries, including Russia and Japan, France, England and Italy, are showing us HOW.

We invented the flying machine, perhaps after a while we shall make up our minds TO USE IT. Let's hope so.

Which College?

Or, Why ANY College?

A few short weeks, now, and the parents of John and James will be trying to decide which college to send them to, without first having considered whether it is best to send them to any.

This new custom of sending "everybody" to college President Faunce of Brown University calls "one of the truly great tragedies of American life today."

Dr. Faunce is not denying universal education. "None of us," he says, "can get too much."

But men are not alike, whereas traditional college courses are very much alike.

"Let us get out of the notion," advises the president of Brown, "that college is the one and ONLY road to a worthy education."

"There are dozens of great writers and editors who never went to college. Some of our outstanding leaders in politics and some of our best-informed and best-educated men in business and industry and finance have gained their knowledge MILES AWAY from college halls."

How, then, shall the great question be decided?

President Faunce would put the following proposition before the high school graduate and give the young man time to digest it:

"To be a successful college student one need not always have a brilliant mind. But one must be hungry, or there is no use sitting down to a four-year table."

"Do you really desire to find out the CAUSES of things—of airplanes, or governments, or earthquakes, or the League of Nations?"

"If you have no HUNGER FOR STUDY, but only a hunger for other things, then go after such things at once and pick up your education 'on the side.'"

"But if you are willing to postpone these things for four years while you try to understand the world into which you are going, and how we can make it better, then come to college, and welcome! Come, if you have to borrow every dollar. If you merely want to buy and sell, go where such things are done. But if you want to know the WHY and WHEREFORE of selling, AND LIVING, then it will richly pay you to give those four precious years to finding out."

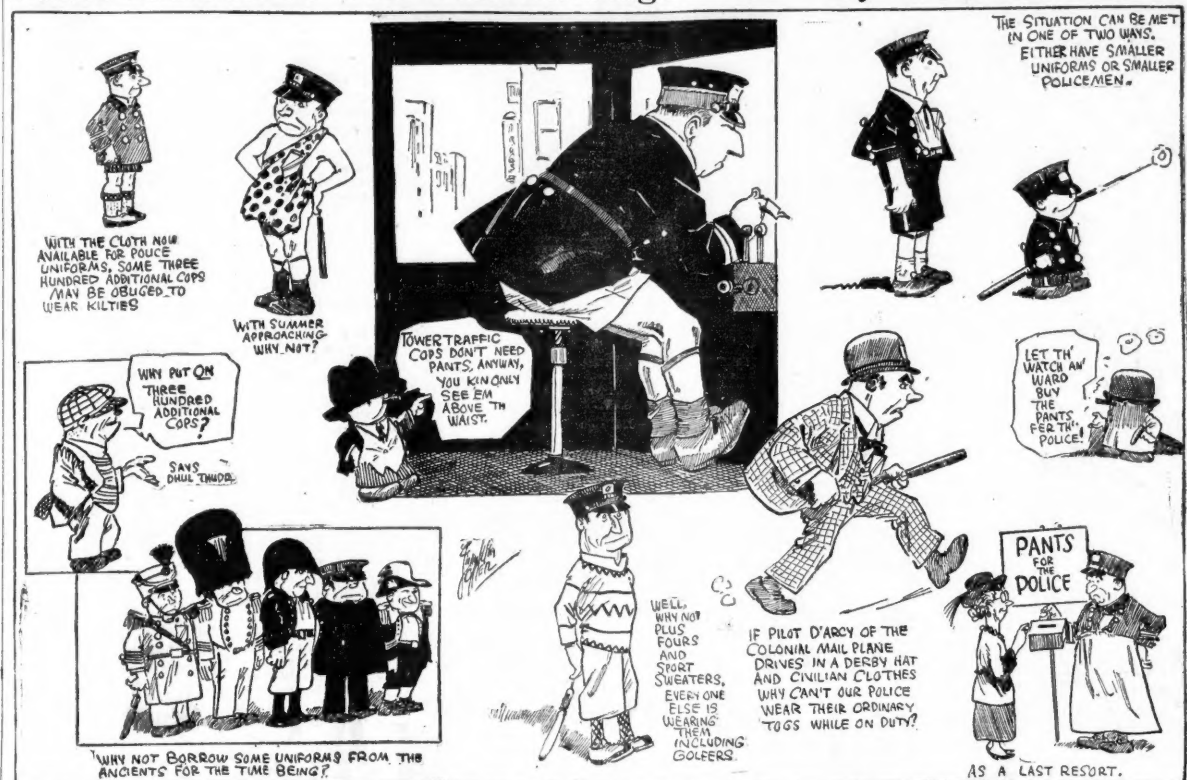

The records of one college, Dr. Faunce says, show that 82 out of every 100 students enrolled have failed to complete the course. A few colleges claim a loss of only 10 per cent., while in others it amounts to 60 per cent.

The distinguished educator's conclusion is that we are sending to college too many of the wrong kind of boys.

His words are worthy of the most serious consideration by both father and son.

Police Threatened With Pant Shortage

By Franklin Collier

Police Commissioner Wilson told the Boston City Council Budget Committee that if it slashed $22,000 from his allowance for police uniform cloth he would have to put the force in kilts.

LESSONS FROM THE GREEN LEAVES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE most important of all living things is the leaf. Many leaves such as spinach, lettuce, etc., are eaten raw in salads or cooked directly.

Most of the foods, however, begin with a leaf and result in a fruit or vegetable. Apples, pears and other fruit, to say nothing of tomatoes and bananas, are all a modification of living forms in some way or other.

The tree is nothing but the developed leaf, as all tree trunks start with a leafy bud.

The leaf products eaten by man produce a certain amount of heat as nourishment. Burned in the fire they give out a definite amount of light and heat.

Dr. Gager, of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, said in a recent address that Dean Swift's description of extracting sunbeams out of cucumbers for later use during raw seasons are not so absurd after all.

The most striking effect of the vegetation of the earth is its green leaves. Even when these do not appear green, as in copper-leaved beeches, the green coloring matter is there, but it is overwhelmed by the presence of another pigment.

Now this leaf-green depends upon sunlight and it might be called, without too greatly stretching the truth, capsaule sunlight. The leaf-blade also gets water and various salts from the soil, oxygen and dioxide gas from the air. This process can only take place in the presence of light, and is perhaps the most fundamental of all the processes of life.

Be the food that we eat, whether vegetable or animal, the clothing we wear, cotton, woolen or silk, the frame dwellings in which some of us live and the wood, coal, gas and electricity that heat and light our buildings depend eventually upon green leaves.

Most of our butter and milk comes from animals that feed on leaves. All the wood and coal in the world was formerly inside of a green leaf and the heat and light of our houses is the sunlight of previous geological ages captured first by green leaves and stored up in coal mines.

When Adam and Eve, according to tradition, made for themselves clothing of fig leaves it was an act typical of all future clothing as well as of all future nourishment of the race.

If you are going to be a heathen and worship strange gods we might recommend to you as an object of adoration the green leaf.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

HUSH MONEY

GLADSTONE Spring was announced to late sleepers in the PENWAY the other day by a pair of wandering minstrels. Concorina and flagpole waited "La Paloma," "Santa Lucia," and "O Sole Mio." The flagpole waited out of tune with its mate, and in addition, the limitations of the instrument produced weird harmonies. The minstrel, however, had no scruples in stopping in midscale to go and scoop up a far-flung dime. When the minstrel ceased his roving routine, the furious blowing-off key until more windows were raised and more hush money came pouring forth. Hush money for most part.

EXPLAINED

A group of politicians in a Newspaper restaurant roared when IN-REPRESENTATIVE P. JOSEPH McANDERSON of Roxbury and CONCORD told this story: "A friend of mine called today for three weeks at a hospital to see his wife who underwent a surgical operation. He was told each time by an attendant she was improving. One day he called and found her dead. Asked by friends the cause of her death he said: 'She died of improvement.'"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MORE and more, as I study this business of living, I am convinced that life is but a shabby camp along the trail. And that we ourselves are but transient visitors in this camp.

It is as if the Creator summoned each adventuring self and said:

"I am going to send you away from home.

"For a little while you must abide in a dingy place.

"You will not like the place nor understand it. It will hurt and irritate and disappoint you from the day you enter it until the day you depart. There will seem to be no aim or sense to it. As you study the history of this place, you will find to find any great proof of progress in it. It will seem as filled with cruelty and ignorance and misery as it was a million years ago.

"There will be some bright glimpses in this dreary place but they will be so fleeting that you will lose faith in them. Nothing will last—nothing will satisfy—all joy will be Dead Sea fruit.

"And you will rebel against the place.

"You will cry, 'Why am I here? Why am I forced to waste my dreams and energy in such an utterly futile world?'

"You will wait for an answer but you will hear none, and when it does come your heart will be filled with anger and despair. You will lose ambition and hope.

"Yet in spite of all this, you must pass through this place.

"You must pass through the dark, difficult and as the butterfly passes cut soil and as the butterfly passes through the sealed tomb of its chrysalis.

"You must pass through it, for it is part of the eternal cycle of your growth.

"There is that shabby camp of World Life you must learn a part of your lesson as countless lives before you have learned a part of their lesson. And while you are learning it you must wear the strange and squalid out of the body.

"Just as the life in the shabby camp will fit you so will your body fall to fit you. It will never be large enough for you, nor swift enough nor beautiful enough. And it will begin to fail you very soon. Then you will cry out in fear for you will have forgotten that it is just a suit, and you will feel that if it goes you, too, must go.

"And when the suit at last falls you completely, when it drops from you in crumbling shreds, a great walling will arise, for those who loved you will feel that you are lost forever!

"But you will not be lost. You will have slipped quickly and quietly from that crumbling suit—as a young plant slips from the seed—as a butterfly slips from the chrysalis—and you will be on your way.

"You will be on your way, as you always have been on your way, treading that shining trail that loops the mountains of earth.

"So now you must be off. Here is the misty suit of your body. There is the door of Birth. And there beyond are the murky lights of the camp of life where you shall know so little joy and so much grief. Go! But when your time is done, return to me.

More and more I feel that way about our life, the life of the body. Copyright, 1927, King Features Synd., Inc.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALAN MICHAELS.

NOT only in old bones, dim with years, all scarred and stained beneath Time's cruel hand, where every shadow breeds vague hopes of fears and by each chamber pallid sentries stand—not only there do shadows go out and in to live once more old triumph, love and hate; not there alone do buried spectres stir, or loves of happy bygone seasons wait. For I have found a ghost in woodlands green, the happy ghost of childhood's joy I know, where every corner gleams with enchantment's sheen and all the vaulted sky was cloudless blue. Ah, I have seen the tender ghost of love which smiles through misty-ear memories that rise, and I have glimpsed past hopes and dreams and hate; not there alone do buried spectres stir, or loves of happy
